(1811-1889) John BRIGHT

British Statesman. The greatest English orator of modern times. His father was a Quaker cotton spinner. He was one of the foremost members of the ANTI-CORN LAW LEAGUE in 1839, and, associated with COBDEN, was a champion of free trade. His influence upon the conduct of public affairs both in England and abroad is said to have been greater than any other man of his time.

There hardly due to his great moral power, for his life was exemplary, and his name of justice known. He was a representative of the northern cause in the American Civil War. In 1885 he and Theodore disagreed in the question of Home Rule, which led to an open rupture between them.
